- ☑ Calcium Citrate Malate : is approximately (4-5%) more absorbable than calcium carbonate and is well absorbed regardless of stomach acid.
- ☑ Studies have suggested that calcium citrate malate is better absorbed than calcium carbonate.
- ☑ Calcium also aids in the development of the baby's heart, muscles, nerves and ensures good blood-clotting ability.
- ☑ Fulfills the need of low calcium after delivery a during lactation
- Vitamin D3 : Controls blood pressure
- ☑ Maintain proper levels of calcium and phosphorus, which help build baby's bones and teeth
- ☑ Folic Acid : As it is biochemically inactive, is converted to Tetrahydrofolic Acid and Methyltetrahydrofolate by Dihydrofolate Reductase (DHFR)
